

Do you know enough about employment rights and responsibilities?

- What are the different types of working arrangements?
- What are the differences between:
 - > an employee and a contractor?
 - > a permanent, fixed-term, or casual employee?
- What are the essential employment agreement details that must be included in an employment agreement by law?
- What annual leave and holiday entitlements do employees have?
- What other leave types are employees entitled to?
- What are the legal rights of employees with no guaranteed hours of work?

Don't get caught out!

Get answers to important questions like these and learn much more about New Zealand employment rights and responsibilities. Register for free to Online Employment Modules today at:
employment.elearning.ac.nz/learn

ONLINE
EMPLOYMENT MODULES

Employees and employers – Learn online now

Know your employment rights and responsibilities

Don't get caught out!

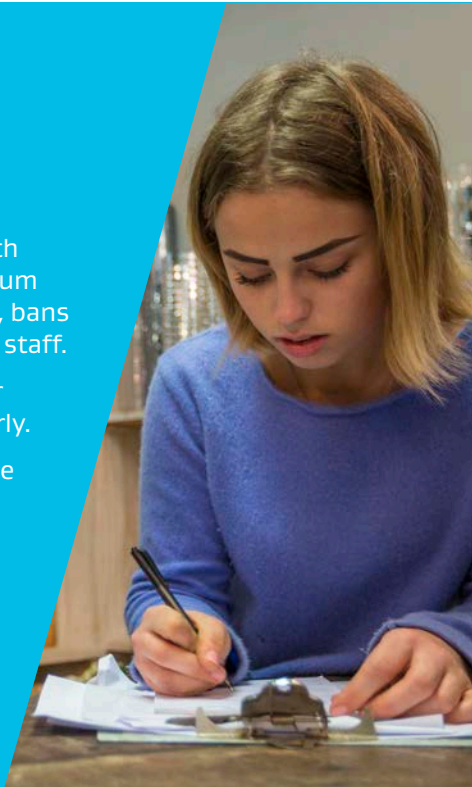

Check out the Online Employment Modules.

Employers – make sure you are complying with your legal responsibilities. Breaches of minimum employment standards may lead to penalties, bans on hiring migrant staff and compensation for staff.

Employees – make sure you are aware of your legal rights to help ensure you are treated fairly.

Modules will cover essential information in the following topics:

- > Working Arrangements
- > Annual Leave/Holidays
- > Pay and Wages
- > Employment Agreements
- > Other Leave
- > Hours of Work

To get started, visit:
employment.elearning.ac.nz/learn
It's free and easy to register.

ONLINE
EMPLOYMENT MODULES

